large and enthusiastic audience enjoyed the various numbers of the concert. The numbers most pleasing were the "Barnum Songs," "Heaven Will Protect the Working Girl," "The Moo Cow Moo" and "The Jumbo Cantepic," in all of which E. G. Burns, the assistant leader of the club, was soloist. Mr. Burns, besides having a fine voice for songs of the lighter vein, proved very entertaining, by his facial contortions. The reader of the club, L. A. Rice, was the best heard here in a long time. Among others he gave O. Henry's "His Career," "The Cremation of Sam M'Gee" and "A Foreigner's Con-ception of Baseball."
